Rightmove offering luxurious three-bedroom apartment is on the 68th floor and is part of a new development in Canary Wharf

The luxurious property is on sale for £1.57 million

Fancy waking up in the clouds?

You might soon be able to - if you've got a few million quid to spare.

This luxurious property has gone on sale in London's Canary Wharf and is set to be in a building twice as high as the Statue of Liberty.

The three-bedroom apartment on the 68th floor is part of the new Landmark Pinnacle development that is currently under construction.

On sale for £1.57 million, the property is the highest on offer on property website Rightmove and promises incredible views across the capital.

If you're lucky enough to end up in one of the swanky flats, you'll benefit from a 24-hour concierge, private cinema room, play garden and London's highest resident's gym and studio located on the entire 56th floor.

Residents will also have access to the impressive 75th floor roof terrace, which offers panoramic views down the River Thames, across the entire city, and eastward over the docks to the Thames Barrier and beyond.

The roof terrace is roughly 780 feet high, which is typically the flying altitude for hot air balloons.

Rightmove property expert Miles Shippside said: 'When complete, this development will undoubtedly take its place among London's leading residential buildings.'

'The views from the roof terrace are sure to be absolutely outstanding and this building will be an exciting addition to London's ever-evolving skyline. But home-hunters with a fear of heights may need some convincing!'

Landmark Pinnacle is currently under construction and is expected to be completed by the end of 2020.

It is listed for sale with Knight Frank.
